

TALKING ABOUT BARGAINS—TEE-DEE WANT ADS. ARE THE BIGGEST BARGAINS ON THE MARKET TO-DAY

PLEAD FOR EDUCATION

Speakers at Randolph-Macon Alumni Banquet Urged Higher Training.

OCCASION MUCH ENJOYED

Affectionate Tributes Paid the Alma Mater by Dr. Evans and Others.

The third annual dinner of the Randolph-Macon Alumni Association of Richmond at the Westmoreland Club last night was thoroughly enjoyed.

The feature of the occasion was the address of Dr. James Morris Page, professor of mathematics and chairman of the faculty of the University of Virginia. His subject was "The Importance of Liberal Education." The address, which consumed just half an hour, was a thoughtful and valuable contribution to the campaign for education now going on in this State and throughout the South. Dr. Page is an honor graduate of Randolph-Macon College and of the University of Leipzig, and has taken high rank as an instructor, being among the leading young mathematicians in the country.

Those seated around the banquet board were Mr. Cary Ellis Stern, president of the Association and toastmaster; Dr. James Morris Page, Rev. William E. Evans, D. D., Dr. Frank A. Woodward, of South Carolina; Prof. R. Benson Smith, of Randolph-Macon; Dr. J. A. Blackwell, of Randolph-Macon; Dr. J. A. Chandler, of Richmond College; Messrs. J. Thompson Brown, John L. Williams, S. W. Travers, Rev. T. McN. Simpson,

DR. JAMES MORRIS PAGE.

Rev. John Hannan, D. D., Hon. S. S. Patterson, Dr. Parker, Dr. A. G. Brown, William Brown, Robert V. Mayo, Robert Reynolds, John Landreth, James J. H. Scott, James C. Martin, G. M. Nalev, George W. Warren, Lewis McKe, Juddins, Dr. Thomas D. Merrick, Charles Laurens, Rev. H. M. Hope, James F. Howson and Arthur H. Taylor.

EDUCATE YOUNG MEN.
Dr. Woodward's address was a plea for greater interest in the higher education of young men and in the course of it he quoted statistics showing a rather alarming condition growing out of the neglect of secondary education in the youth of the country.

One of the most striking thoughts in the address of Dr. Page was that educational influences descend rather than ascend. He enunciated the theory that the best way to raise the standard of education in the primary and grammar schools was to stimulate and promote interest in higher education. He pleaded for more male teachers for boys and youths, contending that instruction by male teachers tended to develop robustness of intellect and virility and force of character.

Following the speaker of the occasion, Toastmaster Stern called upon Professor R. B. Smith, of the college, to respond to the toast, "Our Faculty." Professor Smith's response was well prepared, witty and in excellent vein, and was received with enthusiasm, in concluding he recalled the names of the faculty of the reorganized college under Dr. Duncan's presidency, showing incidentally how many prominent educators were numbered among its then corps. Of the number were the late Professor Thomas H. Price, of Columbia; Professor James A. Harrison, formerly of Washington and Lee, and now of the University faculty, and others hardly less widely known in the educational world.

"OUR ALMA MATER."

The other speakers were Dr. William E. Evans, who responded to the toast, "Our Alma Mater," and Professor Frank C. Woodward, who responded to "Our Alumni Association." Both speeches were reminiscent in their vein and abounded in pleasantness. Among these two former classmate indulged in some humorous thrusts at each other.

President R. E. Blackwell, of the college, gave an encouraging review of the year at Randolph-Macon, and was warmly applauded. Mr. John L. Williams was called upon and spoke of the importance of religious and moral training as the true basis of all education.

The diners indulged in some college songs, accompanied by the orchestra. It was after midnight before the gathering dispersed.
